LEIBNIZ UNIVERSITY HANNOVER

Founded in 1831, Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz Universität Hannover (Leibniz University Hannover) is a leading public research university in Lower Saxony's capital. Home to 28,000 students, it comprises 9 faculties and 3 schools. As a member of the prestigious TU9 Group and the European university alliance EULIST, it excels in research, innovation, and international collaboration, offering diverse programs and cutting-edge facilities.

HANNOVER

Hannover, a city of over 500,000 people and home to 5 institutions of higher education, is one of the greenest and most accessible cities in Europe, thanks to excellent public transportation and a low cost of living. Sports fans can enjoy Hannover96 soccer games, while culture enthusiasts can attend events, concerts and festivals throughout the year, including Oktoberfest, Fête de la Musique, Hannover Messe, and the famous Christmas market.
